Remarkable Escapes of Eminent Mon.

Some years ago, a young man holding a subordinate position in the East India service, twice attempted to deprive himself of life by snapping a loaded pistol at his head. Each time the pistol missed fire. A friend entering his room shortly afterwards, he requested him to fire it out of the window; it then went off without any difficulty. All were unavailing; his would-be rescuers had be a superstant of the country of cuers had lost courage, and were in despair of ever seeing the baby alive again, when the monkey quietly retraced its steps and deposited its burden safely on the bed. On a subsequent occasion the waters had well nigh quenched his nestiable ambition. He fell into a deep Figures. poud, from drowning in which a clergy-man named Johnson was the sole instru-

John Knox, the renowned Scotch reformer, was always wont to sit at the head of the table his back to the window. On one particular evening, without, however, being able to account for it, he would not sit there bimself, nor permit any one else to occupy his place. That very night a bullet was shot in at the window, purposely to kill him; it glazed the chair in which he sat, and made a hole in the foot of the candle-stick on the table.

Many years have now elapsed since three subalterns might have been seen stuggling in the water off St. Helena; one of them, peculiarly helpless, was fast succumbing. He was saved to live as Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington.

The life of John Newton is but the history of marvelous deliverances. As a adjacent streets into which it has poured

He went out in the boat as before to inspect a ship, which blew up before he reached her. Had he left the shore a few moments sooner, he must have perished with the rest on board.

Wants of Kings.

The poet writes, "Man wants but little here below." But this remark does not apply to kings, who want a great deal. A war of gigantic proportions has com-menced in Europe to satisfy the wants of crowned heads. of crowned heads.

The king of Prussia wants both Schleswig and Holstein and has got them; but the emperor of Austria wants Holstein, had it, and has lost it. Prussia wants Hanover, Mecklenberg. Nassau, Brunswig, Oldenburg, Saxony, the Saxon Duchies, Darmstadt, the Hesses, Frankfort, Bremen, Hamburg, Lubec, and the territory of a dozen other little kinglets.

The Austrian emperor wants Bavaria Wurtemburg, and Baden, and don't want the Prussian king to obtain the small states of Northern Germany.

The king of Italy wants Venice and Rome—the former first, the latter after-

The emperor of France wants the Rhine provinces of Prussia and Belgium. The emperor of Russia wants as much of Turkey as he can possibly obtain by

The emperor of Austria wants a slice of Roumania, and Greece would like very much to extend her boundaries to include ancient Macedonia.

The queen of Spain wants Fortugal, it that a lady whose husband left her side there are no serious objections, and the king of Sweden wants what is left of for a few minutes was snatched away to prison. Not long since an actress, Denmark, in order to collect all of Scandinavia under one government.

The queen of England wants nothing only to be let alone. Thus all the powers covet their smaller neighbor's ssessions except Great Britisn. Holland and Switzerland are the only small nations not seriously menaced and in danger of being swallowed. But if Prussia should take Hanover and if Prussia should take Hanover and Oldenburg, and cede her Rhine provinces to France, she may claim the right to Holland if France annexes Belgium. That the map of Europe will be materially reconstructed before the war ends, has every probability. The great potentates of Europe desire to enlarge their boundaries by the absorption of their weaker neighbors, as big fish swallow little fish; but mutual jealousies prevent them from sitting down and amicably dividing the spoil that each so amicably dividing the spoil that each so intensely covets. Hence they have con-cluded to fight for the plunder.

Satisfied thus that the weapon had been duly primed and loaded, the young man sprang up, exclaiming, "I must be preserved for something great," and from that moment gave up the idea of suicide, which for sometime previous had been uppermost in his thoughts. That young man afterwards became Lord Olive.

Two brothers were on one occasion walking together, when a violent storm, accompanied with thunder and lightning overtook them. One was struck dead on the spot; the other was spared, else would the name of the great reformer, Martin Luther, have been unknown to mankind.

Bacon, the sculptor, when a tender boy of five years old, fell into the pit of a soap boiler, and must have perished had not a workman, just entering the yard, observed the top of his head and delivered him.

JUST ISSUED BY BLELOCK & CO., James of the proper it was a present and modern—including Greek sybits, Roman sugars, indian and Expytian mysteries, all miracles—past and prosent—the Bible, Koran. Sharter, &c., entitled "THE BHILOSOPHY OF LIFE AS EVOLVED BY MODERN SCIENCE."

The Actingo-Philosophical Journal says of it: "The author has given, in a vein of thought fervid and glowing as his own native clime, one of the finest analyses of Spiritualism and its blessings ever uttered to the world. He proves it to be a scientific and philosophic religion, and explains it so clearly a skeptic must only wonder that he has not before investigated and accepted teachings so legical. He shows that it has existed from the beginning of time. He regards the Bible as a history of Spiritualism; showing that all people have had their sacred books, from whence they drew inspiration, and an overruling Power whom they worship by some same; and that appring have ever communed with mortals. His impusage is beautiful; his reaconing sound. He quotes freely from the scientific minds of the are. His book bears evidence of beans the production of a cultured mind. He thus speaks in a candid spirit to all striving for truth. Ac.

Where faith has faded under the sunlight of science, it plants philosophy upon which hape and happiness may live and grow into a giar; and to thousands of the depressed and oppressed people of the unfortunate South, it will carry comfort and consolation, and wreathe their lives with a new and higher charm than ever they possessand before.
